Mojoworx and ThinkFlood Deliver RedEye to Northeast and Southeast Asia

RedEye controls get extra boost of 'mojo' from high-end Asian distributor

Waltham, MA and Hong Kong – June 1, 2011 – ThinkFlood, maker of the award-winning RedEye control platform, today announced a new distribution agreement with Mojoworx Asia, Ltd.

Mojoworx represents the most trusted brands in A/V technology such as VISION, Xantech, Pakedge Networking products and now RedEye.

RedEye is the leading control platform allowing customers to use their own smartphone, tablet or PC in a variety of home automation applications. ThinkFlood recently announced compatibility for Android phones and tablets.

"This is a very exciting time for the industry," said Gregory Revell, CEO of Mojoworx. "Custom A/V systems and controls were once limited to the wealthiest consumers. With RedEye, high-end control solutions are available to more consumers without the high-end price tag."

This strategic agreement brings RedEye to dealers in Vietnam, South Korea, Thailand, Japan, Malaysia, Indonesia, Singapore, Laos and the Philippines.

"Mojoworx understands global brands like RedEye and expertly represents the products they distribute," said Adam Shapiro, Vice President of Operations for ThinkFlood. "With the explosion in demand for professional home automation and control products in Northeast and Southeast Asia, the right distribution for RedEye controls is an exciting development for us."

ThinkFlood pioneered smartphone universal remotes with the launch of RedEye for iOS devices in December 2009, and debuted a second generation of control products in April 2011, including a new home automation controller, RedEye Pro.
